TAKING FIRE: American soldiers duck for cover Sunday as a Spanish base near the holy city of Najaf comes under attack during a demonstration by followers of an anti-American Shiite Muslim cleric. At least two coalition soldiers and 14 Iraqis died in the skirmish, while more than 130 others were wounded.

10 U.S. Troops Killed in Iraq

Shiite cleric's followers clash with soldiers in wave of unrest

NAJAF, IRAQ | Supporters of an anti-American cleric rioted in four Iraqi cities Sunday, killing eight U.S. troops and one Salvadoran soldier in the worst unrest since the spasm of looting and arson immediately after the fall of Saddam Hussein.

The U.S. military on Sunday reported two Marines were killed in separate "enemy action" in Anbar province, raising the toll of American troops killed in Iraq to at least 610.

The rioters were supporters of the radical Shiite Muslim cleric Muqtada al-Sadr. They were angry over Saturday's arrest on murder charges of one of al-Sadr's aides, Mustafa al-Yacoubi, and the closure of a pro-al-Sadr newspaper.

Near the Shiite holy city of Najaf, a gun-battle at a Spanish garrison killed at least 22 people, including two coalition soldiers — an American and a Salvadoran.

Fighting in the Baghdad neighborhood of Sadr City killed seven U.S. soldiers and wounded at least 24, the U.S. military said in a written statement.

A resident said two Humvees were seen burning in the neighborhood, and that some American soldiers had taken refuge in a building. The report could not be independently confirmed, and it was unclear whether the soldiers involved were those who died.

Protesters clashed with Italian and British forces in other cities in a broad, violent challenge to the U.S.-led coalition, raising questions about its ability to stabilize Iraq ahead of a scheduled June 30 handover of power to Iraqis. KHALID MOHAMMED (AP)

WAR ON DRUGS | A Delicate Issue When police in Savannah, Ga., did a routine search of thermal underwear left for an inmate at the Chatham County Jail last week, they found a surprise hidden in the long johns — a long plastic bag contain-

Great on Paper

Most college students write papers; some find other uses for the medium. Students from colleges around the country gathered in Winter Park, Colo., on Saturday for a competition on the slopes using paper as their vehicle of choice. Mississippi State's David Neaves, pictured, was just one of the engineering and design students competing for a $15,000 grand prize for his team in the Energy Challenge 2004, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy. The teams built snowboards using about 80 percent cellulose fiber, according to the competition's Web site. (EXPRESS)

A Niche Market

Health officials in Wellington, Ohio, expressed outrage Friday over a fake suicide scene displayed in a shop window. The display at Special Effects, a video and printing store, shows empty beer cans on the floor near an overturned table below dangling legs meant to look like a person who hanged himself. A sign reads, "Contemplating suicide? Let Special Effects give your suicide note that professional look." Store owner Chris Goran said Friday that almost all her customers thought the display she put up last week was amusing, and that she never intended to offend anyone. She said she would keep the display up, but she may add a sign with a suicide prevention hot line phone number. (AP)

Cast in Plastic

When Gen. Douglas MacArthur uttered his famous "I shall return" in 1942, he probably didn't expect to be coming back more than 60 years later as an action figure. A limited-edition toy version of the five-star general, pictured here next to a statue of MacArthur, will soon invade stores around the country. With MacArthur's signature sunglasses and combed-over hair, the G.I. Joe doll bears an unmistakable resemblance to the real thing. The foot-tall figures go on sale this week at the MacArthur Memorial in Norfolk, Va. (AP)

Case of the Impatient Crook

No service, no patience, no payoff. According to police in Knox County, Tenn., a would-be robber left empty-handed Wednesday when he got tired of waiting for workers at a pharmacy to respond to his written demand for narcotics. Pharmacist Dwight Disney told the Knoxville News Sentinel that a man walked up to one of his co-workers and passed her a note demanding drugs and claiming he had a pipe bomb strapped to his chest. But after all the pharmacy workers avoided approaching the robber for about five minutes, he walked out without a word. (AP)

Young TV Viewers Risk Attention Loss

CHICAGO | Very young children who watch television face an increased risk of attention deficit problems by school age, a study has found, suggesting that TV might overstimulate and permanently "rewire" the developing brain.

For every hour of television watched, two groups of children — aged 1 and 3 — faced a 10 percent increased risk of having attention problems at age 7.

The findings bolster previous research showing that television can shorten attention spans and support American Academy of Pediatrics recommendations that youngsters under age 2 not watch television.

"The truth is there are lots of reasons for children not to watch television. Other studies have shown it to be associated with obesity and aggressiveness," said lead author Dr. Dimitri Christakis, a researcher at Children's Hospital and Regional Medical Center in Seattle.

The study, appearing in the April issue of Pediatrics, involved 1,345 children who participated in government-sponsored national health surveys. LINDSEY TANNER (AP)

Iraq Timetable Reaffirmed

U.S. plans to turn over power to Iraqis by July despite recent violence

WASHINGTON | Despite escalating violence that killed 10 U.S. service members over the weekend, the Bush administration is sticking with its timetable to turn over power in Iraq.

"The United States and our coalition partners are continuing to work closely with Iraqi leaders and the Iraqi people on our plan to meet the June 30th deadline,"

White House spokesman Brian Besanceney said Sunday.

At least 10 U.S. troops were killed in fighting over the weekend, raising the toll of American service members killed in Iraq to at least 610.

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee raised the prospect Sunday of extending the Bush administration's June 30 deadline for turning over power in Iraq, questioning whether the country would be ready for self-rule.

Sen. Dick Lugar, R-Ind., said security is a shambles in some cities, and Iraqi police forces are not prepared to take over.

"The real issue is June 30, how we are going to make that transition," Lugar said on ABC's "This Week."

Asked whether transferring power in less than three months would be too soon, Lugar said, "It may be, and I think it's probably time to have that debate."

Under current plans, Iraq would no longer be under U.S. political control on June 30, but more than 100,000 American troops would remain in the country.

Student Shot During Fight on N.J. Campus

MADISON, N.J. | One student was shot in a fight during a campus dance at Fairleigh Dickinson University and several other people were injured, officials said Sunday. At least one of the injured people was stabbed, a law enforcement official said.

Police would not immediately say if anyone had been arrested.

The fight involved visitors to the school as well as students from its campuses in Madison and Teaneck, about 30 miles apart, according to a statement from the school's president, J. Michael Adams.

The fight started during a dance held by the Association of Black Collegians and "resulted in an escalating confrontation," Adams said.

9/11 Panel to Ask Rice About Causes, Solutions

President's national security adviser to testify on Thursday

WASHINGTON | The commission looking into the Sept. 11 attacks will ask Condoleezza Rice why governmental bureaucracy became so flawed as to allow the terrorist strike and how the Bush administration plans to fix the problems, panel members said Sunday.

"Nineteen men with $350,000 defeated every single defensive mechanism we had up on the 11th of September, 2001, and they defeated it utterly," former Democratic Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska.

President Bush's national security adviser, in her public testimony Thursday, will need to answer how that happened, Kerrey said.

Rice also will be asked about ways to correct "what has gone wrong so badly," said a Republican commission member, former Navy Secretary John Lehman. He appeared with Kerrey on CBS's "Face the Nation."

Recommendations of the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States are due July 26. The commission's deadline was extended from May 27 after complaints about alleged lack of cooperation by the White House.

Rice

A major complaint was Bush's refusal to let Rice testify publicly and under oath, which he said would violate a president's right to confidential exchanges with his advisers.

Under pressure from Congress and the commission, including the chairman, former GOP Gov. Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey, Bush relented last week.

Police Defend Search for Woman Who Faked Abduction

Police who spent two days and tens of thousands of dollars investigating a false abduction report defended their decision, saying ignoring the woman's claims could have left the city at the mercy of a kidnapper. On Friday, two days after police found Audrey Seiler, a sophomore at University of Wisconsin-Madison, unhurt in a swamp, they announced that she had faked her disappearance. City officials had estimated that the case could cost at least $70,000, but Mayor David Cieslewicz said Saturday it could be higher. (AP)

Cleric Unproven, Unbowed

Iraqi Shiites are drawn to al-Sadr's unbending anti-American stance

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The political views of Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr are still murky. His academic pedigree is shaky and his oratorical skills are rough. But the 30-year-old cleric whose supporters turned to violence Sunday has a family lineage that earns him respect and adulation among his anti-U.S. supporters.

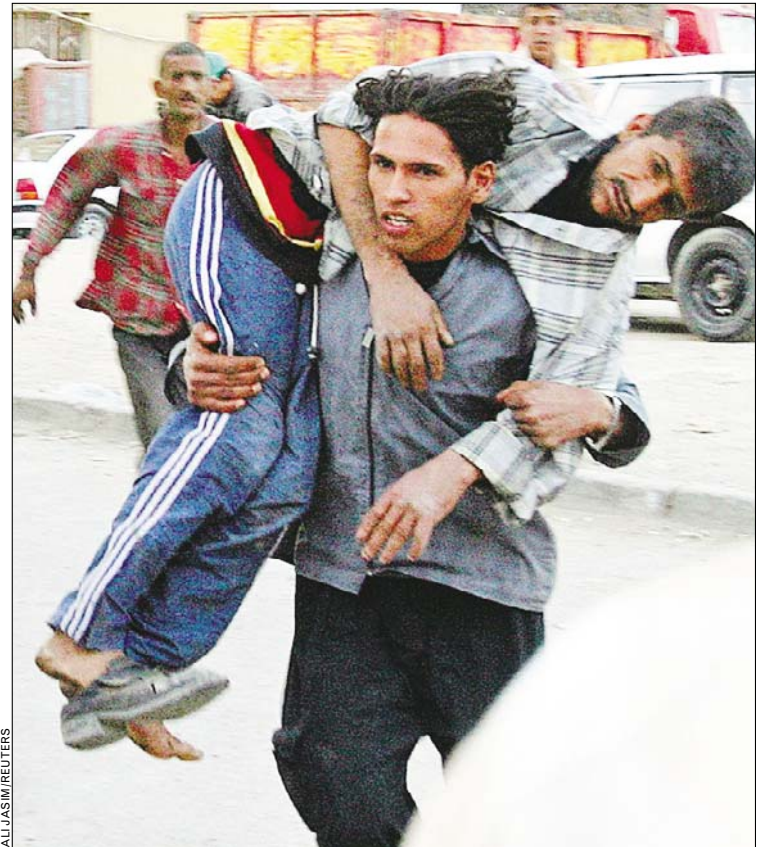

Al-Sadr's father, Mohammed Sadiq al-Sadr, was Iraq's top Shiite cleric. He was gunned down by suspected agents of Saddam Hussein in 1999. His son rose to prominence soon after the Iraqi leader's ouster, thanks largely to the swift steps he and his lieutenants took to fill the power vacuum in Shiite-dominated areas across the country.

The younger al-Sadr is a "hojat al-Islam," a clerical rank that is some 10 years of scholarly work removed from that of an "ayatollah." During sermons, his delivery is wooden compared to more seasoned preachers.

Al-Sadr's relatively young age and lack of clerical credentials have stood between him and winning over educated middle-class Shiites in Baghdad and other cities.

But he is backed by hundreds of energetic seminary students, whose devotion to the memory of his father underpins the movement. They have consistently been able to mobilize supporters at short notice, earning the movement a significant place in the political landscape.

His supporters show him unusual devotion because of his uncompromising anti-American stand — a contrast with what they see as tolerance toward the Americans by other Shiite clerics.

Al-Sadr has not called for armed resistance against U.S. forces, but the latest violence will likely place him back under scrutiny. The coalition has long suspected his supporters of involvement in criminal acts, including the murder of a senior Shiite cleric last year in Najaf and a deadly ambush of U.S. troops last year in Baghdad. NEW MINISTERS NAMED

WITH LESS THAN THREE MONTHS remaining before the U.S. hands political power to Iraqis, the coalition in Iraq on Sunday announced the appointments of Ali Allawi, the interim trade minister, as the new defense minister; and Mohammed al-Shehwani, a former Iraqi air force officer who fled Iraq in 1990, as head of the Iraqi National Intelligence Service. Slovenes Refuse To Restore Rights To 'The Erased'

LJUBLJANA, SLOVENIA | Slovenes overwhelmingly voted Sunday against restoring the rights of thousands of ethnic Bosnians, Croats and Serbs who were stripped of their citizenship when Slovenia broke away from Yugoslavia.

Ninety-five percent of the voters denied restoring rights to the group, widely known here as "The Erased."

Ethnic Slovenes were automatically given citizenship after the country declared independence in 1991, while 18,000 people of other ethnic backgrounds were required to apply for citizenship. Those failing to do so within a year were deleted from the national register, effectively making them non-persons in the eyes of the government.

Nationalists, who fear an influx of immigrants could hurt Slovenia as it enters the European Union on May 1, argued against the measure, saying Slovenia could be forced to pay billions in damages. (AP)

'Ringleader' Killed In Spain Explosion

Alleged mastermind of train attacks dies in blast as police move in MADRID, SPAIN | The explosion that killed the alleged ringleader of last month's Madrid train bombings and four other terror suspects means the "core" of the group that launched the attack is now either dead or detained, Spain's interior minister said Sunday.

Sarhane Ben Abdelmajid Fakhel, the 35-year-old Tunisian accused of spearheading the March 11 attacks that killed 191 people, died in the thunderous explosion as police prepared to storm their apartment in the suburb of Leganes, south of Madrid, Interior Minister Angel Acebes told a news conference.

The 22 pounds of dynamite and 200 detonators found in the apartment are the same kind used in the March 11 attacks and in the unexploded bomb that was discovered Friday under a track on the Madrid-Seville high-speed rail line, Acebes said. Such explosives and detonators are widely available in Spain, however, and the match was not definitive proof of a connection.

Two or three suspects may have escaped before Saturday's blast, which killed a special forces officer and wounded 15 other policeman, Acebes said.

Fifteen suspects, 11 of whom are Moroccan, are already in custody in the Madrid attacks. The investigation has focused on the Moroccan Islamic Combatant Group, which has links to al Qaeda. MAR ROMAN (AP)

President Paul Kagame opened a conference on the 1994 genocide by accusing the international community of failing in its responsibility to halt the killing.

Transit Groups Fight Terror

MARC, VRE step up security plans in response to new reports

WASHINGTON | Public transit agencies in the Washington, D.C., region have reacted to a recent heightened terror warning by speeding up security plans already in the works and imploring riders to be vigilant participants in the protection effort.

On Friday, U.S. officials said intelligence reports indicated possible terrorist attempts this summer to place bombs concealed in backpacks or luggage on board U.S. buses and trains or in transit stations. There was no specific information about cities or dates.

Dennis R. Schrader, director of Maryland's Office of Homeland Security, said officials have accelerated a plan to lend bomb-sniffing dogs to the Maryland Transit Administration — which operates the MARC commuter rail system — for passenger screening and surveillance. Efforts to install explosive-resistant trash cans at MARC stations are also being stepped up.

Beginning Monday on the Virginia Railway Express commuter line, riders will see more armed security personnel at various locations, according to spokesman Mark Roeber. County police officers will have a heightened presence at stations during peak commuting hours, he added.

The officials surveyed said their agencies have already implemented many of the security suggestions made by the Department of Homeland Security.

Metro to Give Out Maps of Services

WASHINGTON | Metro will begin giving out maps of its bus and rail lines on Monday in an effort to gain riders by helping to decode a web of transit service across the region.

The free maps, available at rail stations and Metro sales offices, show color-coded, numbered routes for Metrobus and local bus services, the locations of Metrorail stations and connections to Amtrak, MARC and Virginia Railway Express.

The maps are part of a multi-year plan to improve the availability of bus information and eventually bring new technologies to buses.

Later this year, map distribution will expand to other sites.

To get a free map by mail, call Metro at 202-637-7000. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

CHERRY BLOSSOMS | ZOOMING IN

PACKING THE BASIN: Despite Sunday's strong gusts and relatively chilly weather, people continued to flock to the Tidal Basin in Washington to catch a glimpse of the cherry blossoms before they are out of season.

SINCE YOU ASKED

Q Why do all of the escalators at Metro stations have to be running at times when there aren't many passengers? Why not shut down one to save on wear and tear, plus energy costs?

A Station managers can turn off escalators at their discretion, but Metro tries to keep them running. Cedric Watson, superintendent in charge of elevators and escalators, said one reason is public perception. When escalators aren't moving, riders assume they're out of service. But safety is also a concern. If they're left on, the escalators will be available to help passengers out of stations during an emergency, he said.

Spokeswoman Lisa Farbstein said it's also an effort to provide equivalent service to all customers, regardless of when they ride.

Operating for that long does wear on the machines, but they're designed to run for more than 24 hours at a time, Watson said.

They do consume energy, but the amount pales in comparison to what's used to move the trains. Cutting out escalators wouldn't make a significant dent in the bill, Farbstein said. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

Lookout

IN PURSUIT: University of Maryland student Tim Daly, right, Byron Macfarlane, center, and Drew Vetter hope their Micheal Moore-style documentary, "Bob & Me," will pressure the elusive Gov. Robert Ehrlich to increase funding for their school.

On Ehrlich's Trail

U-Md. student film hounds the governor over campus funding

ON CAMPUS | Tim Daly, a 22-year-old activist and president of University of Maryland's student body, waits patiently outside the high, black iron gate of the governor's mansion. His camera crew lurks quietly behind him.

"I was hoping to meet with Governor Ehrlich, please," Daly says, pressing the button on an intercom for Gov. Robert Ehrlich's house.

Finally, out comes a security guard. Not the governor.

So begins Daly's hunt for Maryland's CEO, depicted in his half-hour documentary "Bob & Me," a take-off of Michael Moore's "Roger & Me," the 1989 film that shows Moore pursuing former General Motors boss Roger Smith to confront him about laying off 33,000 auto workers in Flint, Mich.

Daly, who produced his film with $8,000 in private donations raised by a student-run political action committee, sees his pursuit of the governor as a venture similar to Moore's.

University tuition has increased by as much as 54 percent over the last four years, with the percentage increase at most campuses in the university system ranging from the low 30s to the mid 40s. An additional increase averaging 9.4 percent has been approved for next fall.

Daly and his producers hope the movie will inspire lawmakers to pass pending legislation that calls for caps on future tuition increases tied to requirements that Ehrlich increase funding for the university system.

Daly says the snubs from Ehrlich began in October, when the governor ditched an appearance on the weekly talk show Daly hosts on student-run 88.1 WMUC. Shortly after, Daly started the political action committee.

He never did get a meeting with Ehrlich, and the governor's press office said last week it never got a request for one.

"I've never met this kid," Ehrlich said at an unrelated news conference Wednesday, adding that maybe Daly has a promising career in stand-up comedy.

"Maybe we will buy him a cup of coffee sometime after session," Ehrlich joked.

The film splices interviews with financially strapped students and laid-off staffers into short bits of Daly hunting down the governor, who is depicted only in television news footage.

The humor of Daly peering up at a construction site poster on campus, saying: "Lemme get this straight. You cut $100 million, and then you put your name on all the signs?" is balanced with the seriousness of the real-life interviews, all in the style of Moore's documentaries.

"We needed to document how these decisions are affecting students and staff members," Daly said. "We needed to hold accountable the people who are making decisions that are destructive to the university system."

Daly may be best known in Annapolis for towing an old Ford Pinto to the Statehouse, after Ehrlich was quoted by The Washington Post as saying the state can't afford a Cadillac of a health-care system and might have to settle for a Pinto.

"They should take us seriously, because while we may have started out with these outlandish things like the Pinto, now we've started our own political action committee and produced our own professionally made film," said Byron Macfarlane, a University of Maryland junior and a producer of the movie.

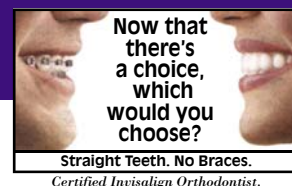

"While parts of it are humorous, we're also dead serious about it, too." GRETCHEN PARKER (AP)

Connecticut's Center of Attention

Okafor looks to cap season with NCAA title

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL | Few people draw the distinction between life and basketball more clearly than Emeka Okafor, the star center for Connecticut.

The son of a man who grew up in war-ravaged Nigeria, Okafor has led an easy life by comparison, and he's the first to concede that.

"My dad's high school education was interrupted by a civil war and they weren't sure they were going to eat the next day," Okafor said. "And here I am in the United States wondering what I'm going to get for Christmas."

On Monday, Okafor will lead UConn against Georgia Tech in the national final. A win would mark the crowning achievement on the basketball court for Okafor, although it would be only part of the picture in his well-rounded life.

The 6-foot-10 All-American, who averages 17 points and 11 rebounds, will earn his degree in finance in May with a 3.8 grade-point average. After that, he'll probably be a top-five pick in the NBA draft in June.

It took Okafor just three years to earn his degree, an impressive accomplishment that doesn't surprise those who know him. Okafor shrugs it off, calling it more a matter of circumstance than anything great he did.

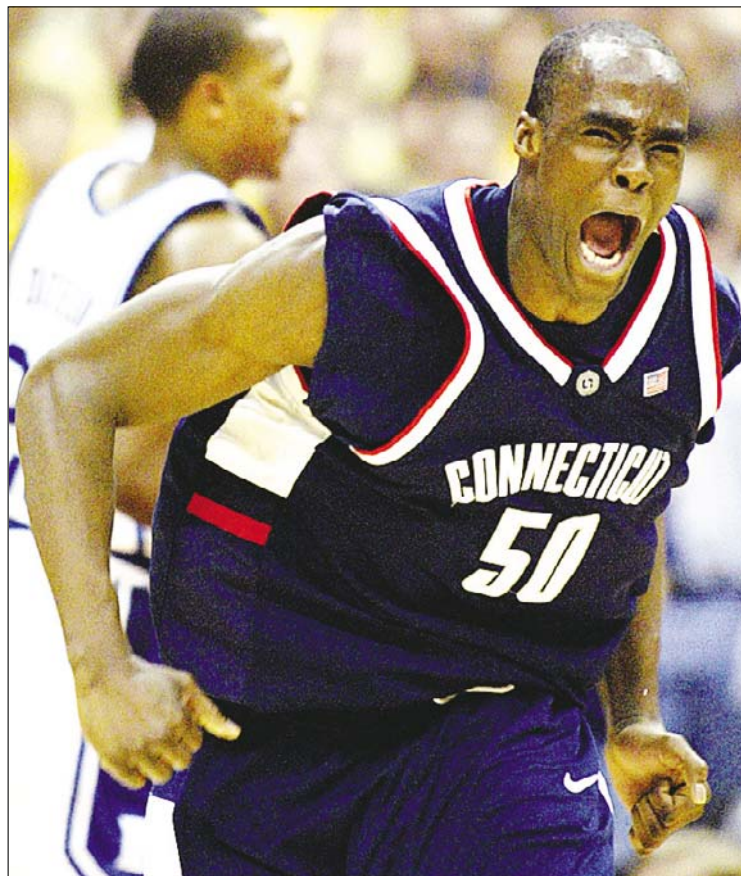

In his eyes, the successes on the court and in the classroom are equally important. "They go hand in hand, they're both a part of me," he said.

Okafor has steadily progressed with the Huskies, going from a freshman who averaged eight points to an inside force who can completely control a game.

In the semifinals against Duke, he got into early foul trouble and sat on the bench for the last 16 minutes of the first half. In the second half, he scored all 17 of his points and grabbed seven of his eight rebounds. That, plus the defense he played, was the difference in a 79-78 win.

"He was just so focused into winning that basketball game that he took it upon himself," coach Jim Calhoun said. EDDIE PELLIS (AP)

Roddick Beats Injured Coria To Capture Nasdaq-100 Title

Andy Roddick won his first Nasdaq-100 Open title Sunday when Guillermo Coria of Argentina retired because of back spasms trailing in the fourth set. Roddick led 6-7 (2), 6-3, 6-1 when Coria quit after losing the first three points of the fourth set. The Argentine said he hurt his back midway through the first set while hitting a return. (AP)

HOCKEY

Bruins, Flyers Win Divisions

The Boston Bruins won a division title and took one away from the New Jersey Devils on the final day of the regular season. Glen Murray set up a goal and scored another in a three-goal first-period, and the Bruins captured the Northeast Division title with a 3-1 win over the Devils on Sunday. The Philadelphia Flyers took advantage of the situation, grabbing the Atlantic Division title from the Devils with a 3-3 tie against the New York Islanders. (AP)

PRO BASKETBALL

Spurs Extend Winning Streak, End Lakers' Run

Tony Parker had 29 points and nine assists and the San Antonio Spurs beat the Los Angeles Lakers 95-89 Sunday for their sixth straight victory, moving them within 1 1/2 games of the Western Conference lead. Tim Duncan added 18 points, 13 rebounds and six assists. The Lakers had their 11-game winning streak snapped and dropped into third place in the West, a half-game behind Sacramento and Minnesota, who both won Sunday. (AP)

RUNNING

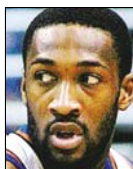

Kenyans Win Men's, Women's Cherry Blossom 10 Mile Run

Kenyans again dominated the Cherry Blossom 10 Mile Run in Washington, which usually attracts some of the world's best road racers. Nelson Kiplagat was the top men's finisher Sunday with a time of 48 minutes 12 seconds. Kiplagat is the 12th Kenyan male in 13 years to win the race, organizers said. The top female finisher was Isabella Ochichi of Kenya, who set a world record for a 5K race last weekend with a time of 14:53 and finished Sunday in 52:07. (AP)

Arenas, Wizards Overcome Celtics

PRO BASKETBALL | Gilbert Arenas scored 32 points, including a four-point play with 1:25 left, to lead the Washington Wizards to a 112-102 victory over the Boston Celtics on Sunday.

Larry Hughes added 29 points for the Wizards, who avoided their first regular-season series sweep by Boston since 1981-82 when the Celtics won six games against the Washington Bullets.

Arenas

Jarvis Hayes, who was activated from the injured list before the game, sparked the Wizards' 8-0 run to a 90-83 lead with 9:33 left.

Hayes sank a jumper, made a steal, and assisted Mitchell Butler for a dunk. Kwame Brown's hook and Hughes' jumper capped the run. (AP)

Patience Pays Off for Bynum, Georgia Tech

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL | Will Bynum was fuming.

He doesn't like sitting around, watching others play. The guy has an NBA logo tattooed on his left arm. He wants the ball in his hands.

So Bynum was moping around after he barely played for Georgia Tech a couple of weeks ago in an NCAA tournament game.

"I'm sure I wasn't high on his hit list," coach Paul Hewitt quipped.

Hewitt and Bynum went out to dinner at a trendy Atlanta restaurant, enjoying seafood while soothing any hurt feelings. Be patient, the coach pleaded. Your time will come.

At the Final Four, Hewitt proved to be prophetic.

With the score tied and the clock winding down, Bynum got the ball at the top of the key, drove past Oklahoma State's John Lucas and laid it in with 1.5 seconds left to give the Yellow Jackets a 67-65 victory Saturday.

Now, it's on to the championship game for the first time in school history. Georgia Tech will meet Connecticut on Monday night in San Antonio during the last game of the season.

The stocky Bynum — a junior guard generously listed at 6 feet — could be a key figure again.

While center Luke Schenscher will have his hands full against UConn All-America center Emeka Okafor, the Huskies' backcourt showed some vulnerability in a semifinal victory over Duke.

Taliek Brown had a season-high seven turnovers. Starter Jarrett Jack and Bynum plan to make the senior

"We're like sharks in the fish tank," Jack said. "If one of us goes out, the other one is right on you."

Capitals Lose in Finale

PRO HOCKEY | Lasse Pirjeta scored two goals and the Pittsburgh Penguins, despite finishing last in the NHL's standings for the first time since 1984, ended their late-season surge by beating the Washington Capitals 4-3 Sunday.

After losing 18 straight games, the Penguins went 12-5-3 — the greatest turnaround by an NHL team following a winless streak of 15 games or more.

The Penguins also were 6-0-2 in their final eight home games after going 0-15-1 during a franchise-record 16-game home winless streak that also set the league's record of 14 straight losses at home.

Milan Kraft scored the game-winning goal with 2:38 remaining, less than 90 seconds after the Capitals' Jeff Halpern stole the puck off defenseman Ric Jackman's stick in front of the Penguins net to set up an easy goal by Brian Willsie.

Matt Hussey fed the puck from along the left wing boards to Matt Bradley near the edge of the net, and he steered it to Kraft for a one-timer from the slot for his 19th goal.

Adu Already Drawing Crowds for MLS

SOCCER | Freddy Adu received a welcoming hug from the player he replaced, then ran onto the field. He was by far the smallest athlete out there, looking like a little kid trying to crash a pickup game for grown-ups.

Adu made no major mistakes, and his one chance to be creative with the ball was stymied by a defender more than twice his age. Given his size, his nerves and the sheer volume of attention he's received, it was perhaps unrealistic to expect anything different from a 14-year-old experiencing his first 29 minutes of professional soccer during D.C. United's 2-1 victory over San Jose on Saturday.

Still, the youngest player in the 9-year-old league's history is doing for MLS what no one else has. The crowd of 24,603 was some 7,000 more than United drew in their home opener a year ago. United's game next week in Los Angeles is also expected to sell out, and sales are strong for the game in the Meadowlands against the MetroStars the following week.

"We want that to be every week," San Jose forward Landon Donovan said. "We want 25,000 people screaming every week. I just hope it doesn't die away." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Sadler Squeaks Past Kahne for Second Win

AUTO RACING | Elliott Sadler took advantage of another hard-luck moment for Jeff Gordon in Texas, then barely held off rookie Kasey Kahne in an exciting finish in Fort Worth, Texas on Sunday.

Sadler's victory in the Samsung/ Radio Shack 500 — his second career NASCAR Nextel Cup win — came by two-hundredths of a second over Kahne, the rookie who has three runner-up finishes and a third-place showing.

Sadler and Kahne were racing alone at the front of the field, with the rookie trying to get back in the lead for the seventh time. He led 148 laps, but not the one that mattered.

Sadler led by a half-second with 10 laps left, but Kahne kept trimming the space between the two cars. Coming out of the last turn, Elliott Sadler celebrates his close victory in the Samsung/Radio Shack 500.

Kahne made one last push and had his left front panel just alongside the rear of Sadler's Ford as they crossed the finish line around the lapped car of Johnny Sauter. It was the eighth-closest finish in Cup history. STEPHEN HAWKINS (AP)

All Ears on Disney

A mega-corporation launches a radio station aimed directly at tween consumers

RADIO | In Hollywood, tweens have bumped off the 18-24 crowd in the contest for most desirable demographic. Tweens wield combined spending power of about $250 billion in the United States alone — and that's all disposable income.

But while the mainstream media views tweens as a relatively recent phenomenon, another service quietly has been attracting tween converts by the hundreds of thousands — and it happens to share a moniker with the leading brand in family entertainment.

Radio Disney reaches an estimated 23 million 6- to 11-year-olds. Its programming is syndicated nationally (it can be heard in Norfolk and Richmond, Va., and Cumberland, Md.), with all music and DJ banter produced in Dallas and piped live to local stations via a 24-hour satellite feed from Disney-owned ABC Radio Networks (Radio Disney's immediate parent). Five-and-a-half minutes of every Radio Disney hour are set aside for local advertising and promotions.

Although culled predominantly from the top 40 and contemporary hits radio formats, playlists also can include anything from cartoon songs to the Village People to soundtrack hits (including many from Disney's Buena Vista and Miramax films, of course).

TOUCHED BY A POP PRINCESS: Radio Disney events bring 6- to 11-year-old fans face to face with young stars who generate income for the company — like Hilary Duff, whose film and pop album were released by Disney-owned Buena Vista.

During an average week, 2.7 million children and 1.4 million mothers tune in to Radio Disney. With more than 50 percent of listening taking place in cars (and therefore with a presumed parent at the wheel), Radio Disney is blessed with a unique — and captive — dual audience.

The brand has been extended to include Radio Disney Live! concert tours, "Radio Disney Jams" compilation CDs, consumer products and electronics — singing interactive dolls sold as Radio Disney Pop Dreamers — and Hit Clips music players.

Other extensions include new distribution platforms such as XM and Sirius satellite radio, digital cable and television and an "American Bandstand"-type TV show. All of that adds up to a great deal of increased exposure for Disney as a whole.

"With the core Disney brand, there are challenges reaching the upper end of that [age] range, so being able to really target and reach the tween market has been a very important realization for ourselves," said Radio Disney president and general manager Jean-Paul Colaco. "This [isn't] just a radio station reaching 4.5 million people every week; it is a brand." TODD COLEMAN (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

Politics and Beats

FILM | Dead Prez's new album, "RBG: Revolutionary But Gangsta" (Columbia), is chock full of rapid-fire rhymes, bouncy-but-gritty beats and political poignancy. But "RBG" may not live up to the hype and hopes of those who are eagerly awaiting a follow-up to the group's debut, 2000's "Let's Get Free."

The record is the kind of offering that could serve as a bridge between fans of gangsta rap and those yearning for politically minded rhymes like the ones Public Enemy made famous.

The record gives fans of each of those styles one place to find both in tracks like "Walk Like a Warrior," the soulful "W-4" and "Hell Yeah," which throws down a dance beat and the call-to-arms, "If you claiming gangsta, then bang on the system."

But the message could be lost in all the throw-your-guns-in-the-air bravado, especially on tracks like "I Have a Dream Too" where MCs M-1 and Stic.man describe a drive-by on cops in retaliation for the shootings of blacks by police.

Although the record is lyrically compelling from beginning to end, it's wanting in the music department. Songs like "50 in the Clip" and "D.O.W.N." use played-out beats.

Still, "RBG" is a solid record, and should have an audience in both gangstas and revolutionaries. ANGELA WATERCUTTER (AP)

HURT COBAIN: One of the singer's paintings from a dark but prolific period he spent in Olympia, Wash., in the late 1980s.

Noise of Art

Kurt Cobain's haunted, expressive paintings

AFTERMATH | Leland Cobain spreads a few yellowing pieces of art across his dining room table. The Aberdeen Museum of History has asked him to contribute to an exhibit about his grandson, late Nirvana frontman Kurt Cobain.

One Christmas card Kurt made for his grandparents at age 13 shows a hapless toddler, fishing, who has hooked the back of his shirt. There are radiant watercolor seascapes and depictions of Disney characters.

Then there are the other paintings — surrealistic, stark and powerful — in an apartment 55 miles northeast of Leland's trailer.

Like Cobain's music, these images illustrate the haunted genius of the man who shot himself 10 years ago today. "By the time he left here, I saw him as the type who could have been a professional painter," said art teacher Bob Hunter, Cobain's favorite teacher at Aberdeen's Weatherwax High School. "When I look at his lyrics now, I can see more of what went into his art."

In fact, says Cobain biographer Charles Cross, during the last two years of Cobain's life the singer frequently spoke of giving up music for a career in visual arts. In 1992, he spent six months in Los Angeles, taking time off from Nirvana to focus on his heroin-inspired painting.

It was a prolific time for Cobain, a time when he was experimenting with mixing his own blood and semen with paint. But those works have been seen by very few people, Cross being one of them.

While Cobain's estate keeps his Los Angeles paintings in a secure vault, the AP was able to view several paintings owned by one of Cobain's close friends in Tacoma.

One shows a fetus floating amid what appears to be the white silhouettes of tree branches. Another is of a strangely bent skeletal figure resembling a ghostly white E.T. It was a self-portrait, the friend said.

Some of the paintings were done on the back of board games that Cobain bought at thrift stores because he couldn't afford canvas.

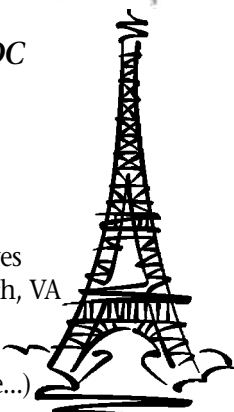

Said Hunter: "The art he had within him did as much for the music as the music did for the art." GENE JOHNSON (AP)

Sonic Gloom: Psych Furs

4 Who would have thought the mopeiest of grandeur-rock post-punketeers — the Psychedelic Furs — would be moaning and misanthropeing into the 21st century? To be fair to Richard Butler and company, the Furs haven't been at it the whole time, but old fans have been a-swoon again since 2001's "Beautiful Chaos," the Furs' first live album, was released.

Guild Talks Focus on DVDs, Reality

NEGOTIATIONS | Movie and television writers will seek a bigger cut of profits from the fast-growing DVD market when talks begin today on a new three-year contract.

Members of the Writers Guild of America also want studios to help cover rising health care costs.

Producers counter they cannot afford to pay writers more because production costs have increased and changing economics and viewing habits have made it tougher to recoup investments.

"It's not surprising to hear media moguls pleading poverty," the guild told members in a recent negotiations update. "But don't be fooled."

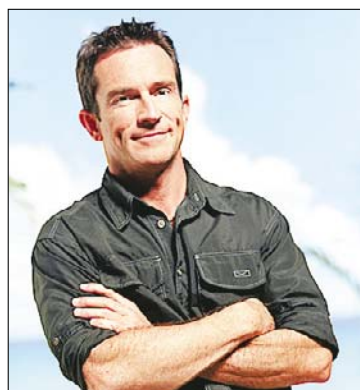

The WGA contract covering 11,000 writers is set to expire on May 2. Both sides have offered little public comment about the negotiations. Some industry sources have said that unscripted reality shows would make it easier to fill holes in the fall TV schedule in the event of a walkout.

The talks are shaping up as a sequel of sorts, with many of the same issues on the table that dominated the last round of talks in 2001. Those negotiations were settled when writers won a share of video-on-demand revenue, but at the time, DVD sales were not yet a major revenue source for studios.

Jennings in Search of Paul

FOOTSTEPS OF HISTORY | Bringing a reporter's eye to biblical stories is Peter Jennings's passion.

ABC is taking the extraordinary step of devoting all three hours of prime time tonight to Jennings's latest religious saga, "Jesus and Paul: The Word and the Witness."

Jennings said the special's timing and content was locked in before Mel Gibson's film "The Passion of the Christ" became a huge success. Still, the movie can't help but affect how the ABC show is perceived.

"In the wake of 'The Passion,' which created such intensity, we bring some further education to the debate that people are having," said Jennings.

LIVE FROM THE HOLY LAND: Jennings in the 2000 special "In Search of Jesus."

The ABC project is essentially the sequel to "In Search of Jesus," the 2000 special on Jesus Christ's life that finished third in the week's television rankings, an unusually potent performance for a documentary.

Jennings immediately asked to examine St. Paul, who did more than anyone to spread Jesus' message to a non-Jewish world.

"Paul is ... just a wonderfully interesting story, and a story very relevant to today," Jennings said. "So much of what we're debating in the country today — marriage, sex, religiosity, the role of women — was precisely what was going on in Paul's day." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

ON TV TONIGHT

KISSING UP: Prepping to pay tribute.

CLEVER OR STUPID?

TRIBUTE: A ROCKUMENTARY (9 p.m., Showtime) Blue-collar guys live out their fantasies in this documentary, which follows members of Kiss, Judas Priest, Monkees and Beatles imitation bands. The "Spinal Tap" moments pile up, particularly when members of Missing Link, a Monkees tribute ensemble, descend into bitter feuding.

ANNIVERSARIES BIG AND SMALL

Other notable documentaries include KURT AND COURTNEY (9 p.m., Trio), director Nick Broomfield's chronicle of Nirvana's doomed front man and his bride. The Sundance Channel airs three films on the 10th anniversary of the Rwanda genocide: GACACA: LIVING TOGETHER AGAIN IN RWANDA? (9 p.m.); IN RWANDA WE SAY... THE FAMILY THAT DOES NOT SPEAK DIES (10 p.m.); and THE LAST JUST MAN (11 p.m.).

TV FOR MEN. LONELY MEN

The Spike network celebrates the arrival of STAR TREK: DEEP SPACE NINE on its schedule with a nine-hour marathon (noon, Spike; concludes Friday).

Steal This Job

Angela Soler, 21

JOB: Passion Parties consultantEDUCATION: Bachelor's in biological anthropology from George Washington UniversitySALARY: $2,000 to $3,000 per month for two or three gigs a weekWHAT SHE DOES: Soler is a direct marketer of adult products, hired by women hosting in-home soirees — like Tupperware parties, only with bath and body products, lingerie and sex toys instead of airtight containers. Soler and business partner Rachael Feinman diffuse tense rooms with sex-related quizzes and games (of the chaste variety) and sell their products free of the discomfort buyers may feel in a store (drinks help). "Sex is still a bit of a taboo, and especially sex toys. You have to just throw all that out the window because people are looking toward you to take away their tension, their anxiety."

HOW SHE GOT THE JOB: The pair got the idea after Feinman threw a similar party for Soler's birthday. They went shopping for companies and liked what they saw at www.passionparties.com. An e-mail was all it took, plus buying their demo models.

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: The Web is a good place to look for companies, though some may seem "a little sketchy." You'll need to invest time to make money — there's no charge for the three-hour parties, but consultants get a cut of the sales. Parties are "tasteful and discrete," but expect to be contacted by people who get the wrong idea. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

Wrangle Work Weasels

WORKPLACE | Are you sometimes a conniving weasel at work?

If you answered yes, then you probably aren't the biggest jerk in your office. That's because the really big jerks almost never acknowledge their behavior. In many ways, that's the secret to their success.

"I've never met a chronically difficult person who owns up to his actions," says Gloria Elliott, who helps 100 companies deal with obnoxious employees through her "Jerk Training" seminars.

Elliott estimates that 10 percent of people in the work force are full-time jerks. To thrive in their presence, she says, you must figure out who's redeemable and who's not.

If someone is simply a remorseless jerk, back off. They're not "normal," so normal responses rarely work. Resist taking their bait, limit your contact with them and always be on guard. "Nice is not contagious," Elliott says. "Don't smile at these people."

FIRED POWER: Does your office jerk measure up to Tammy of "The Apprentice"?

If you do choose confrontation, take back-up. Even then, your team can't demand a "personality transplant"; just outline the work-related behavior that you want changed.

Sometimes people will give you strong warnings that they see their jerkiness as a necessary tool. Take note. In one of Elliott's seminars, an attendee admitted: "Look, I can be nice until 9:15 a.m., and then it's every man for himself."

Ozzy's mind was elsewhere. Had he driven Kelly to pills? And if so, how?

FAMILIES
It's Like ... Like ... Ibsen

The California state medical board is investigating a complaint that Dr. David A. Kipper, a Beverly Hills physician with a celebrity clientele, overprescribed addictive drugs to OZZY OSBOURNE. The singer said he had been taking as many as 42 pills a day at Kipper's direction. Meanwhile, KELLY OSBOURNE checked into a drug rehabilitation center for an addiction to painkillers, her parents said on "Larry King Live" Friday night. Ozzy said the family's maid found a bag of pills under her bed. "There must have been 500 pills," he told King. (AP)

WHO KNEW? Drea de Matteo of "The Sopranos" feels guilty about success. "Maybe it's because I grew up so insecure," she told the New York Times. "I never felt entitled to anything." (AP)

TWINS
The Slime of Their Lives

Fulfilling the fantasies of tween boys everywhere, MARY-KATE AND ASHLEY OLSEN were thoroughly slimed at Saturday's 17th annual Nickelodeon Kids' Choice Awards. This year's show included "X-men" actor Hugh Jackman, who won the ceremony's celebrity burping contest. (EXPRESS)

BAND HUSBANDS
Awww, Isn't He Just Like a Young Sean Penn

Gwyneth Paltrow's husband, CHRIS MARTIN, faces possible charges after scuffling with a photographer outside a London restaurant Agence France Presse reported. According to a spokesman for the British band Coldplay, of which Martin is the lead singer, there was an altercation with a paparazzi photographer as Paltrow and Martin entered a cab.

The spokesman said the photographer's injuries — minor cuts and scratches — stemmed from a fall as he was chasing the cab on foot. "Naturally enough, for a man whose wife is heavily pregnant with their first child, Chris's sole concern was to ensure that Gwyneth got into a cab safely and was not harassed in any way," said the spokesman. POSTAGE Real Men Don't Appear On Stamps — Or Do They?
The U.S. Postal Service unveiled its annual "Legends of Hollywood" commemorative postage stamp Saturday night at a private fundraiser. This year's face: JOHN WAYNE. In 1990, Wayne was pictured on one of four 25-cent U.S. commemorative postage stamps honoring classic films released in 1939. (AP)

Lick him, stick him and send him on his way — unless he's self-adhesive. Ouch.

TO THE EDITOR

AS AN AMERICAN MUSLIM, I was shaking with anger while reading about the horrific attacks in Iraq ("Gruesome Attack in Iraq," April 1). I have come to the conclusion that the Iraqi people have lost their minds — as well as their religion. We are finally getting to a place where second-generation American Muslims like myself can make a difference in what is happening in such war-ridden Muslim countries. I would be more than happy to do what I can to help real, genuine Muslims who are suffering and praying for a better life, but I adamantly refuse to help these monsters.

—ALMAS DAVIS
Arlington, Va.

THE CONDESCENDING tone of Dan Miller's "Call of the Child" column on Friday infuriated me. When I looked up at his picture, however, and saw his "I've been to college and I know everything" glasses perched upon his own watermelon-sized head, I felt sorry for him. He may never know the sublime joy and feel the true love that can only come from your own child. Perhaps the world would be a better place if his parents had shared his views on children.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may have to recycle one or two of your best ideas simply to get by — but others will accept what you offer as first-rate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may want to change your image, but others aren't likely to accept you as anything but what you already are. Trust the status-quo.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Now is the time for you to invest a little more enthusiasm into your endeavors. When someone says jump, you should want to say how high?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Travel may be in the picture. Take precautions and plan ahead, but expect delays toward midday. Long-distance messages come your way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You're likely to need someone to do things side-by-side with you, if for no other reason than you are hungry for some able companionship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You can provide someone with a shoulder to lean on — but who is going to be there when you need someone? The answer is evident.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — It's important that you let others in on a little secret right from the start. The more you keep to yourself, the less you may progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — An attraction between yourself and someone born under another sign could prove volatile. You may need to weigh options by day's end.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — It may take you most of the day to build up the courage to give that special someone a call. You have something important to say.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You may have to slow down just a bit to care for a minor physical ailment that is a result of your over-active schedule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You will be expected to put your cards on the table, but you should be able to put a personal touch on the proceedings and come out ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Concentrate on projecting the appropriate image, and on receiving into your own circle the kinds of input that is most helpful to you.

Tyco Mistrial

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

MORRIS L. REID, managing director of Westin Rinehart, was online Friday to discuss the Tyco mistrial and whether brands can survive after scandals.

Will there be another trial?

Yes, and what we're hearing is that the district attorney wants to move very quickly. This guy smells blood.

The buzz is that they were close to finding a guilty verdict on a few things, so I'm sure they want to keep the momentum going.

Is this a win situation for Tyco?

This type of bad publicity creates problems. However, it's important that the company sticks to the fundamentals and continues to increase shareholders' value and create distance between the Tyco under former CEO Dennis Kozlowski and the Tyco we know today.

This won't be a true win for the company until this is over and they can put it completely behind them.

How does all this affect Tyco workers?

This certainly hurts the employees' morale and affects their bottom line. When the company doesn't make its earnings on a quarterly basis, that affects the bonuses it is able to pay out to employees.

We have to remember that we are reading the headlines and talking about companies, but real people work in these companies and real people are being hurt. It's sometimes easy to forget that.

What about Martha Stewart? Can her company survive her conviction?

The brand is dead as we know it. However, if you make good towels and you make good sheets, you might still be able to make a good living. The company should be looking to spread its risk around and not be so dependent on one individual.

These guys obviously know what they're doing, but depending on one personality is really the problem for them right now.

Today on Live Online

1 P.M.: Actress Tilda Swinton ("Adaptation,") and director David Mackenzie (BBC) will discuss the new film "Young Adam."

Rotini Primavera

Serves: 4

5 Ingredients:

- 2 cups dry rotini
- 1 can (10.5 oz.) condensed cream of chicken or cream of celery soup
- 1/2 cup fat free or low fat milk
- 1 pkg. (16 oz.) Giant Rancho Fiesta or other mixed frozen vegetables
- 1/2 cup shredded or grated Parmesan cheese

30 Minutes:

Prepare pasta according to package directions. Meanwhile, in a large saucepan, combine soup and milk. Heat, stirring, 2 minutes. Add vegetables and 1/4 tsp. black pepper. Cover; simmer for about 5 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Add cooked pasta and heat through.

Serve topped with Parmesan cheese.
